When should I report to CEOP...?

- If you are being asked to do something that makes you feel uncomfortable
- If someone is being insistent on meeting up
- Maybe inappropriate chat messages you are receiving
- Someone acted aggressively or threatened you online, or another child you know

Not just girls who are targeted - boys can be criminally victimised online, too.

Research suggests that a quarter of victims online are boys.

Let's have a look at

A video clip from C.E.O.P.

which illustrates the vulnerability of children on the internet...

How do offenders engage youngsters?
- by using the sites that they use....

Often posing as a child of the same age / gender.

They will often purposefully present a very similar profile as the child.
 They are skilled at manipulating them into criminal sexual relationships

What do these five stages of grooming look like when actually carried out?

Online grooming: The five stages

Friendship

Breck and his five friends played games on a server on Minecraft. The best server, they all agreed, was hosted by Lewis Daynes.

There was never a formal introduction, but they knew he was 18 years old, and was an IT expert.

Breck considered him to be a friend of his friends.

Education Child Protection Ltd.

Online grooming: The five stages

Forming a relationship

Breck and his friends upgraded to TeamSpeak. In charge of their server, again, was Lewis Daynes.

Lewis convinced them all was living between London and New York, working with the American government as an IT expert. He also stated he owned a huge IT company, worth millions.

In reality he was unemployed living in Grays, Essex.

Education Child Protection Ltd.

Online grooming: The five stages

Risk assessment

Lewis knew Breck had built his own computer, and that he played online alone in his bedroom.

All of the boys always 'announced' when a parent was in the room - and Lewis spoke to Breck's Mum on several occasions.

Education Child Protection Ltd.

Online grooming: The five stages

Exclusivity

Lewis gained Breck's trust over a period of months, and began talking to him in private chat rooms on TeamSpeak.

Here he started to turn Breck against his friends.

He also began to brainwash him to rebel against his Mum and school. He promised him a job at Microsoft.

Education Child Protection Ltd.

Online grooming: The five stages

Exclusivity

Breck's parents and the other boy's parents staged an 'intervention'. They removed their computers from them in an effort to keep them safe.

Lewis convinced Breck to record this 'meeting'.

Lewis couriered a mobile phone to Breck so that they could carry on their exclusive communications.

Online grooming: The five stages

Sex talk / Meet

Breck had just returned from a school trip to Spain, and went to meet Lewis Daynes in Grays, Essex. Lewis paid for him to get a cab from Redhill, Surrey.

This taxi was booked two weeks before.

Lewis had told Breck he wanted to hand over his company to him, as he was seriously ill.

Education Child Protection Ltd.

Online grooming: The five stages

Sex talk / Meet

Breck was murdered by Lewis.

Lewis told one of Breck's friends that he'd killed Breck on TeamSpeak. Then he phoned 999 and admitted the murder whilst on the phone.

When the police arrived all of Lewis' devices and hard-drives were submerged in water in the sink.

Online grooming: The five stages

Sex talk / Meet

Lewis was convicted of murder with sexual and sadistic intent, and was sentenced to life imprisonment.

Lewis had purchased duct-tape and condoms the previous week.

He had attempted to rape a 14 year old boy the year before.
